Urgent Appeal for Support for the Victims of Typhoon Pedring and Quiel in Ifugao Province, Cordillera Region

Typhoons Pedring and Quiel (international names Nesat and Nalgae) wrought tremendous damage and destruction to Northern and Central Luzon provinces, leaving these in a state of calamity. At a national scale, the National Disaster Risk Reduction and Management Council (NDRRMC) reports that at least 2 million people are affected. In the Cordillera region, the province of Ifugao, famous for its Banaue Rice Terraces, suffered the most from the twin disasters of Pedring and Quiel. Tremendous agricultural loss has been reported in the other Cordillera provinces, apart from the road blocks due to continuing rains, which prevent the entry of supplies.

Five towns remains isolated until now in Ifugao, while at least 2,687 families or roughly 16, 122 persons were affected; four deaths and 22 injuries were also reported. 152 families have been displaced, and they are now in evacuation centers in the towns of Lamut, Hungduan and Banaue. 2,514 houses are totally damaged, while some 138 houses are partially damaged. The Burnay Bridge located in Tungngod, Lagawe, collapsed around 12:45 PM of September 27. The bridge connects Ifugao to adjacent provinces.

As of Serve the People Brigade's monitoring today, power has been restored in parts of Lamut, Lagawe and Kiangnan municipalities, but some municipalities remain isolated due to big landslides and wiped out bridges. These events pose serious threat to the lives of the survivors, who face hunger and immediately need relief assistance. Much more needs to be done to restore roads, structures especially farmlands. Relief services have reached some parts of the province, but many communities must still be reached.

The Serve the People Brigade-Cordillera Disaster Response Network once again humbly appeals to you for support in this time of emergency and disaster, to contribute what we can help the people of Ifugao. Your response, generosity, kindness and solidarity to the victims and survivors of super typhoons Pepeng and Ondoy in 2009 helped tremendously in rebuilding communities and homes. With continuing impacts of climate change and its particular impact to indigenous communities, and due to the terrain and amount of rainfall in the Cordillera, we expect more disasters if more heavy rains and strong typhoons come.

An average of 20 typhoons enter the Philippines in a year, and before 2011 ends, we are expecting more or less five typhoons. In addition, the Philippine Atmospheric, Geophysical and Astronomical Services Administration (PAG-ASA) has announced that rainfall will be above normal in the remaining months of 2011 due to the La Niña phenomenon. Thus, as calamities and disasters continue as a result of climate change, development aggression, environmental destruction and marginalization, the Serve the People Brigade will continue its work, based on its capacity as a grassroots disaster response network, and continually appeal for support so long as such disasters adversely affect the lives and survival of the people of the Cordillera.
